One drawback to footnotes is you can't see all of them on the screen at once. The included FOOTSHOW.WPM macro copies footnotes from one document screen into a separate listing in the other document screen (without changing the original document) so they can be seen without entering View Document.

Run the macro by placing your cursor at the top of the document, pressing Macro (Alt-F10), typing "footshow" and pressing (Enter). Press Switch (Shift-F3) to see the listing of your footnotes. Press Switch (Shift-F3) again to return to your original document.

I found this macro especially helpful when I had a document that was approaching 200 pages long, and I wanted to generate a list of all the references and citations made by footnotes.
